Mad rush to grab Flames game tickets

Popular purchase.

Online buyers say tickets flew off of the virtual shelves the moment they went on sale Tuesday

Any prospect of an NHL boycott or post-lockout fan apathy evaporated Tuesday, as Calgary Flames tickets went on general sale and quickly eclipsed last season's initial sales totals.

"In six hours, we're about 30 per cent ahead of last year's two-day sale," said Rollie Cyr, the Flames' vice-president of sales.

Pre-sales to season ticket holders were also up, Cyr added, by about 20 per cent over last year.

Many fans looking to buy tickets online reported fierce competition for seats.

"I was very surprised by the lack of availability," said Chris Ferneyhough. "There seemed to be a lot of anger by fans during the lockout. But much of that anger seems to have already disappeared."

Jefri Hiebert said he furiously hit the refresh button on his web browser the moment tickets went on sale but still couldn't find the tickets he wanted.

"Even though I knew I was either at the front or extremely close to it there were no remaining tickets at my price," he said.

Both Hiebert and Ferneyhough later found resale tickets through online classified ads.

Ben Hodson of Saskatoon was looking for five tickets to a Flames-Canucks game and said he was "extremely surprised" by how quickly they sold.

"It seemed as if every time I refreshed the page, tickets were gone," he said.

The Flames also announced numerous fan-appreciation promotions Tuesday, which Cyr described as among the "most aggressive" in the NHL.

Still, he said the main draw remains the hockey.

"Our best thing we can do for our fans is to ensure that the on-ice product is where it should be," Cyr said.

Black Top. Former driver being sued

Months after Black Top Taxi Company took its final Calgary fare, the organization is launching a $2-million lawsuit against a former driver, accusing him of spearheading a "campaign of misrepresentation and falsehoods."

Documents obtained by Metro indicate Black Top Taxi Company Ltd. and manager Baljinder Bhullar filed the action against Rajiv Kapil, head of the Calgary Cab Drivers Association, last month.

Black Top was the third-largest taxi operator in the city when it ceased operations in May, just as the city was planning to launch a review hearing of fees being charged by the broker to drivers.

Kapil, who drove for Black Top, emailed an initial complaint against the company, claiming he'd been forced to pay $7,000 on top of standard fees to retain his company-owned license.

Black Top now alleges Kapil defamed the company and Bhullar specifically in an email to the city livery transport services manager.

"As a result of the aforementioned misrepresentations of the defendant, taxi drivers were reluctant to purchase plates, costing Black Top loss of opportunity and loss of business," the claim reads.

The 76 licenses owned by Black Top were sold off to other remaining brokers in Calgary — Associated, Checker, Mayfair, Delta and three-car outfit Advance, which has brought Kapil on, according to the city.

City chief livery services officer Marc Halat said Black Top's end did little — if anything — to harm local taxi service and officials actually began witnessing a decrease in wait times over the Christmas holidays.

Kapil declined to comment on the lawsuit and Bhullar could not be reached Tuesday.

Front-line workers and union representatives say issues remain with EMS service in Calgary, one year after initial concerns were raised in a staff survey. METRO FILE

EMS stretched to breaking point

Red alert. Amid influenza and norovirus outbreaks, EMS is scrambling to keep up with demand, issuing alerts when no ambulances are free

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Reports of rising call volume, stretched resources and mass delays at emergency rooms are renewing concerns that ambulance service in Calgary can't keep up.

Alberta Health Services confirms a 15 per cent jump in EMS call volume in December, much of which is attributed to outbreaks of both influenza and Norovirus.

But while officials said call volume does ebb and flow, a medic of two years working in Calgary said he fears for patient safety.

"It's a drastic increase," said the medic, who spoke to Metro on the condition of anonymity. "Every other shift I work we are going down to a red alert."

The alert is issued when not one free ambulance is able to respond to a call in Calgary.

Images from a dashboard screen of a local ambulance provided to Metro last week appear to back up claims of vehicle shortages; however, the medic said much of the issue lies in long waits to transfer patients into the care of a hospital physician, which can take up to five hours in some cases.

Darren Sandbeck, AHS executive director of EMS operations for Calgary, deemed December's increase substantial but said demand is levelling off a bit early on in the new year.

As well, another 24-hour ambulance will come online this week, he said.

"I'm confident we're in good shape in Calgary, adding some resources and getting another emergency department," Sandbeck said, referring to the Monday opening of an urgent care area at the South Health Campus on Calgary's southeastern outskirts.

Kelly Garland with the EMS union-representing Health Sciences Association of Alberta said he agrees capacity issues exist, but indicated they stem from broader issues surrounding privatization of long-term care facilities and a shortage of acute care spaces.

"It's quite threatening to all of us potentially," Garland said. "It needs to be addressed ... to ensure that we do have these crises, like this flu, that we have ways to increase that capacity. It doesn't appear we have that."

Background

- Initial concerns about EMS service in Calgary and Edmonton were raised last year after results Health Sciences Association of Alberta surveys showed discontent with upper management and steep workloads.

Afghanistan. Judge to decide fate of convicted Calgary reservist

Maj. Darryl Watts CANADIAN PRESS FILE

It's now up to a military judge to decide if a reservist convicted in a deadly training accident in Afghanistan is a man with no remorse who deserves to be punished, or an officer who shoulders little blame for what happened.

Those were the two pictures painted by lawyers Tuesday as the sentencing hearing for Maj. Darryl Watts concluded.

Watts was found guilty last month of unlawfully causing bodily harm and negligent performance of military duty in the training accident almost three years ago.

Cpl. Josh Baker, 24, died when a mine loaded with 700 steel balls peppered a platoon on a practice range near Kandahar city in February 2010.

Four other soldiers hit by the blast were seriously injured.

"There is no punishment less than imprisonment that would be appropriate in this case. He must be held accountable," said military prosecutor Maj. Dylan Kerr.

School-zone safety to be studied

City council approved a plan Tuesday to examine installing rumble strips to roadways near school and playground zones.

As Metro first reported last Wednesday, Ald. Jim Stevenson raised the idea of making the 30-km/h zones more noticeable. He said many drivers miss the "one lonely sign" that marks the beginning of most zones.

Calgary artist selling pieces to save eyesight

Ceramics. Andrew Tarrant has been working as an artist for more than 20 years

KATIE TURNER
katie.turner@metronews.ca

As a ceramicist, eyesight is a crucial part of Andrew Tarrant's livelihood, which is why he's fighting to get it back.

Five years ago, the Calgary artist was diagnosed with a degenerative disease called Keratoconus in his left eye, and two years ago in his right eye.

Fundraising

$7,500

In just over two weeks, Tarrant has raised more than $7,500 towards his surgery.

In that time, Tarrant said his work creating pottery has been significantly impacted, as sharp pains, headaches and an inability to focus have diminished production of the pieces he relies on for a large part of his income.

"I used to be able to make upwards of 40-50 mugs a day. Now I'm down to 12," he said. "It's just too much for my eyes to handle."

Corrective surgery for the disease, which Tarrant said will cost about $4,000 per eye, is not covered by health care. Following the surgery, Tarrant said he will require a new pair of glasses every three months for a year as his eyesight changes, which will cost around an additional $6,000.

Tarrant is selling handmade pieces ranging from beads to mugs to cookie jars with the goal of raising $14,000.

"I'm not just asking for money," he said. "I don't want something for nothing."

To view or purchase Tarrant's pieces, visit indiegogo.com/TrespassersEye.

Idle No More vigil planned for city hall

Calgary's next Idle No More demonstration is aimed at raising awareness of aboriginal and environmental issues — peacefully, according to an organizer.

Chantal Chagnon said participants plan to gather for a candlelight vigil at city hall at 7 p.m. Wednesday, which is designed to move away from the confrontational approach some demonstrators took over the weekend.

"Unfortunately some people were thinking of doing blockades or possibly even violent protest," Chagnon said. "The candlelight vigil is to remain in the spirit of Idle No More, which is of peace and education and sharing and understanding."

Idle No More protesters hold signs outside Stephen Harper's constituency office, Friday. METRO FILE

A sub-group of demonstrators blocked the 14th Street bridge for several hours Saturday following a march from Nose Hill Park.

Police spokesman Kevin Brookwell said charges are still being considered in relation to that event.

Brookwell said police have met with organizers of Wednesday's vigil and understand it is intended to be peaceful, but officers will still be on hand to keep an eye on things.

"We are just there to ensure it's done peacefully and that no laws are broken," he said.

Custom-made plagiarism

Academic dishonesty. Essay ghostwriter has no moral qualms about what he does

JESSICA SMITH
Metro in Toronto

Hey students, want some "eloquent phrasing and sophisticated articulate arguments for your critical analysis?" Or "are you tired of wasting time in front of your laptop instead of having fun?" There may be an essay ghostwriter for you.

On Craigslist Toronto, more than 20 ads for essay-writing services were published in one day this week — months from end-of-the-semester crunch time.

One post advertises, "A for your essays." Another advertises a husband and wife team, both with master's degrees, who have a combined 35 years of post-secondary essay-writing experience.

One of the ghostwriters — "A for your essays" — agreed to be interviewed. Sam, who declined to give his last name, says he has an MBA.

For as little as...

Some ads on Craigslist charge as little as $10 per page for essays.

"The way I look at it is that I am filling a need in the market. I am writing, and what they do with it is up to themselves," he wrote in an email to Metro.

Most of his clients are repeat customers, and he's taken some through both their undergraduate and MBA degrees, he said.

About three-quarters of his students will hand in his essay verbatim, even though he advises them to make it their own. Sometimes, when they write three essays in a term themselves then hand in one of his as the fourth, the TA will catch on to the difference, and they'll get caught, he said. "All students want is an A on the essay, no matter how their previous marks have been."

Sam, like all of the essay writers on Craigslist, says his essays are original, so they won't be flagged as plagiarism by Turnitin.com.

A Metro staffer searches Craigslist ads for essay-writing services. DAVID VAN DYKE/METRO

At this time of year, he'll get eight to 10 email requests a day, increasing to about 20 in March.

Many of his clients are in business school, since he advertises he has an MBA, but they come from all disciplines. Some of his best clients are older people taking a distance degree online, he said.

"Some students give me their online password, and so I do the online course for them," he said.

Buyer beware

Easy A? No way

As with everything you can buy on Craigslist, it's buyer beware for purchased essays.

Metro ordered a $97, custom-written, 1,000-word essay from AcademicWritingBrokers.com, which advertises on Craigslist Toronto. As promised, it arrived within 24 hours and passed a check on Turnitin.com. The topic, "Is William Lyon Mackenzie King an idealist or opportunist?" was from Dan Azoulay's Twentieth-Century Canada history class at York University.

"It's not a very good essay," said Azoulay of the finished product. "It just doesn't answer the essay question."

The essay also has grammar issues, rambles without structure and doesn't come up with a thesis on Mackenzie King.

Drilling time nears for Curiosity rover

NASA says the Curiosity rover should be ready to begin drilling on Mars soon.

It's the most highly anticipated milestone since the six-wheel, nuclear-powered rover landed near the Martian equator five months ago.

Mission managers outlined the drilling plan Tuesday. Project manager Richard Cook says the team has chosen the site where

World losing its sizzle

2012's average temperature ranks 10th in history

New weather data shows that the world's average temperature in 2012 barely slipped into the top 10 hottest years on record, despite the U.S. smashing heat marks.

The U.S. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration says last year's world average temperature was 14.5 C. That's above the 20th century average of 13.9 C.

That ranks 2012 as the 10th hottest year in NOAA records that go back to 1880. The hottest was 2010.

A La Nina and mild weather in Alaska, Canada and parts of Asia moderated the globe's average temperature. The U.S. recorded its hottest year ever last year.

NASA, which measures temperatures differently, ranks 2012 as ninth warmest. Both agencies announced the data Tuesday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

During a recent study by a University of Windsor researcher, a pair of yellow perch became inseparable, leading some to wonder just how social fish are.

Experiment finds fishy friendship

Something in the water. Aquatic alliance between two perch leads to questions about social life of fish

LUKE SIMCOE
Metro Online

While testing a new method for tracking fish, a University of Windsor researcher has inadvertently played matchmaker to a pair of yellow perch.

Aaron Fisk and his team at the Great Lakes Institute tagged the fish and released them into ponds near Harrow, Ont., last fall. The tags sent data to six state-of-the-art receivers, recording the fishes' movement every few seconds.

The new, more granular data will be invaluable to Fisk's research, but it also revealed something unexpected.

While most of the tagged fish "did their own thing," Fisk was surprised to see two move in tandem. The two perch were so inseparable that some analysts asked whether one fish had simply eaten the other.

"We had two fish that spent a lot of time together, but what it was, we don't know," Fisk said.

Had the perch forged a fishy friendship, or maybe even an aquatic attraction?

"I don't know the sex of this fish, so we didn't follow up on that," said Fisk.

Although the subject falls outside his purview, Fisk said fish have far richer social lives than they're given credit for.

"Salmon, for example, have very specific behaviours around reproduction and spawning," he said. "Males will often defend nests and try different things to attract females."

After the first two weeks, Fisk's team added largemouth bass to the ponds to see if the perch's behaviour changed when predators were introduced. He's yet to analyze the data, so Fisk doesn't know if the piscine pals' relationship was cut short by tragedy.

"I don't have that data yet, but they were bigger perch, so I don't think they were going to be eaten," he said.

Although happy to discuss fish friendship, Fisk says his work is more about understanding how the food web reacts to stressors like climate change and invasive species.

"It's basically who eats what and why," he said.

Aided by the new receivers, Fisk hopes the data from his research will help Canada's fisheries become more productive and sustainable.

Suit that makes you look like a million dollar man

Owning a hand crafted, custom fitted suit is the dream of every man and woman. But finding a tailor and staying within budget can often be a challenge. So, you continue to buy ill-fitting suits off the rack – suits that are not customized to the nuances of your body type and size.

An end to an ill fitted off the rack suit

Now a hand cut, hand stitched suit is within your reach through BMV Bespoke, one of Hong Kong's highly respected custom tailors. BMV has been creating custom crafted suits for over 50 years, and have built their reputation on attention to detail, offering fine fabrics and affordability.

BMV Bespoke is passionate about creating the best possible fitted suits for their clients – before a thread is cut or a measurement is taken, your BMV tailor will carefully observe and note every detail of your unique body type to ensure your suit fits to perfection.

"As tailors, we love to see somebody coming to us wearing an off-the-rack, ill-fitting suit, which often costs a fortune and then walk out with one of our perfectly fitted, custom made suits. With BMV, our superior quality and fit often costs so much less, yet fits so much better." ~ BMV's Director and Lead-cutter.

When buying off the rack, the only options are what is in front of a person- the shoulders may be too wide or too narrow or the fit may just not be comfortable.

Men who buy off the rack almost always need to have their suits altered, but by visiting a BMV bespoke, they can have a suit made exactly to their specifications and body type.

"We cut from scratch and make full suit according to individual preference," explains William Bal of BMV Bespoke Tailors.

They visit major cities several times a year, taking custom orders, including tailor-made shirts starting at just $59 upto $250 & suit starting at $329 goes upto $3500 depending on different qualities.

BMV's expert tailors, visits major cities across Canada 7 - 8 times a year. To be custom fitted and select a fabric from the thousands offered by BMV, call the number for your city on the dates provided. Ask for Mr. William Bal or BMV Bespoke.

Once an order is placed, the craftsmanship begins almost immediately, thanks to today's digital technology. You will receive your suit within 4 to 6 weeks after your custom fitting, or you can request express delivery, where your suit will be delivered within 10 business days. You also have the option of having BMV bring your suit during their next visit to your city.

Thousand of Fabrics to choose from famous mills, such as:
Ermenegildo Zegna, Loro Piana, Scabal, Holland & Sherry, Dormeiul, Valentino
And many many more.....

Wal-Mart pledges to hire U.S. veterans

Patriotic push. Retailer waves flag as it tries to rebound from recent blows to reputation

Wal-Mart Stores Inc., the world's largest retailer and the biggest U.S. private employer with 1.4 million workers, said Tuesday it is rolling out a three-part plan to help jump-start America's sluggish economy.

The plan includes hiring more than 100,000 army veterans in the next five years, spending $50 billion US to buy more American-made merchandise in the next 10 years and helping its part-time workers move into full-time positions sooner.

The move comes as Wal-Mart's attempts to rebound from blows to its reputation in recent months from an alleged bribery scandal in Mexico and a deadly fire in November at a Bangladesh factory that supplies clothes to the company. Wal-Mart, which often has been criticized for offering low-paying jobs and not buying more from U.S. manufacturers, said its plan will highlight the career opportunities in the retail industry.

"We've developed a national paralysis that's driven by all of us waiting for someone else to do something," Bill Simon, president and CEO of Wal-Mart's U.S. business, said at an annual retail industry convention in New York on Tuesday morning.

Social media. Facebook unveils 'graph search'

Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg introduced a new search feature on Tuesday in the company's first staged event at its Menlo Park, Calif., headquarters since its May initial public offering.

Called "graph search," the new service lets users search their social connections for information about people, interests, photos and places. It'll help users who, for instance, want to scroll through all the photos their friends have taken in Paris or search for the favourite TV shows of all their friends who happen to be doctors.

Until now, Facebook users were unable to search for friends who live in a certain town or like a particular movie. With the new feature, people can search for friends who, say, live in Boston who also like Zero Dark Thirty.

Zuckerberg says the search feature is "privacy aware," which means users can only search for content that has been shared with them. Still, the company will have to make it clear to users that the new feature isn't unearthing information about them that wasn't already available.

Though the company has focused on refining its mobile product for much of the last year, the graph search feature will only be available on Facebook's website for now. It will likely take more than a year for the search to be available to all of Facebook's more than one billion users. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Competitive move

- Graph search escalates an already fierce duel between Google and Facebook. Although Facebook isn't trying to fetch information across the web like Google does, it's clearly trying to divert traffic and ad spending from its rival.

THE SWEETNESS OF A GOOD BOOK

JUST SAYIN'
Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

When you're a reader, there's nothing like finding a new series.

It's even better when, by the time you stumble upon it, there is already a bunch written that you can plow through with relish.

That's what happened with A Song of Ice and Fire (Game of Thrones), George R.R. Martin's wildly fascinating sword-and-sorcery epic. I got to it as Volume 3, A Storm of Swords, was released. As each book is well over 1,000 pages, I had at least three weeks of uninterrupted delight.

But then, I had to wait along with all the other geeks for Martin to continue the agonizingly slow process of churning out Nos. 4 and 5. Still to come, Nos. 6 and 7, and who knows when they'll be ready? Martin has apparently never met a book tour, fantasy conference or editing project he can resist. With any luck, we'll both be around for The End, but the odds are growing increasingly long … or is that short?

Which is why, if you haven't encountered Flavia de Luce until now, this is your lucky day. You have something to do while waiting for Martin's The Winds of Winter.

Flavia de Luce is an 11-year-old girl who lives in a rundown manor house in the English village of Bishop's Lacey in 1950. She solves murders, assisted by a fully stocked chemistry lab left by her uncle, her bicycle Gladys, and an 11-year-old's still-fresh curiosity.

Yeah, I know. But, world of wonders, these books, starting with The Sweetness at the Bottom of the Pie, currently culminating in Volume 4, I Am Half-Sick of Shadows, are good.

Better than good.

Even crazier? They are written by a 74-year-old Canadian man, Alan Bradley, originally from Cobourg, Ont., who spent 25 years as a director of TV engineering at the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon. He retired to Kelowna, B.C., where he expected to go gently, etc., when a cataclysmic 2003 forest fire that nearly engulfed his house caused him to re-examine his scorched priorities and start writing like an 11-year-old girl.

He'd never even been to England until 2007, when he went to pick up the first of Flavia's multitude of awards, but that didn't prevent him from nailing the Agatha Christie English-village murder mystery.

Of course, there aren't a lot of 74-year-old men who can write like an 11-year-old girl, but Bradley seems to have little trouble channelling his inner Flavia, who is by turns funny, solemn, wise, petulant, insightful, kind and, above all, curious. The kind of curious that killed the cat, essential in a murder mystery.

Hermione Granger meets Sherlock Holmes.

The good news gets even better. Unlike George R.R. Martin, Bradley has discipline and reliably finishes one of his novels a year. The next one is due, according to Amazon, in two weeks. Another volume in the series of 10 (say it ain't so!) arrives in early 2014.

Oh, and Hollywood director Sam Mendes has bought the TV rights, so stay tuned …

Newborn panda says hello to world

It appears this baby panda was born for the limelight as he smiles and waves adorably in front of the camera. The 37-day-old cub seemed to enjoy his photo shoot after he was weighed, measured and fed by medics. Fancy dress for good

Staff wear panda costumes

Wolong made news in 2010 after staff decided to don furry panda costumes.

"We came up with the idea because captive pandas are too familiar with people. But by rearing them using panda suits, the baby panda would grow up never seeing any people," researcher Huang Yan said.

This way, Yan hopes, pandas who will return to the wild won't be too dependent on humans. METRO

Taking a Stand on drug movies

IN FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

This weekend Arnold Schwarzenegger takes on his first lead role in 10 years. In the Last Stand he's Sheriff Ray Owens, a rootin', tootin' small town lawman who battles a Mexican drug cartel.

It's the first time Arnold has fought drug lords, but Hollywood often looks to the cartels for a supply of bad guys. There are rumours that Scarface, the movie about a Cuban immigrant who takes over the south Florida drug trade, is about to be remade and relocated to the world of Mexican drug cartels.

The Johnny Depp movie Blow was actually renamed Cartel in some markets. Based on the book Blow: How a Small Town Boy Made $100 Million with the Medellín Cocaine Cartel and Lost It All, Depp plays George Jung, the man who launched the American cocaine market in the 1970s.

Finally, Colombiana is another cartel revenge flick. Zoe Saldana is Cataleya Restrepo, who as a 10-year-old saw her parents killed by a Bogota drug lord. Instead of calling the police she instead becomes an assassin who vows to avenge her family's deaths. Her journey starts with 10 words: "I want to be a killer. Can you help me?"

Mama is an upcoming horror film directed by Andres Muschietti starring Jessica Chastain. HANDOUT

Childhood trauma at root of Del Toro's Mama

Interview. Producer talks about why his films are so dark, and turning a short film into a full-length Hollywood horror

scene@metronews.ca

When I ask Guillermo Del Toro why his films often feature kids as main characters his answer is upfront, open and a little surprising.

"I had a horrible childhood, emotionally," says the director of The Devil's Backbone and Pan's Labyrinth. "I was not a child who was beaten or locked in a closet, but I really have a very intense relationship with the horror of Catholic guilt and the dogma. My grandmother was like Piper Laurie in Carrie. I was like a chubby version of Carrie. It was very difficult for me to get over that.

"I jokingly say I spent 40 years trying to recuperate from the first eight, but to a degree it is true. I really suffered intensely in the first 10 years of my life. I would cry at the concept of burning in hell, or the concept of purgatory and original sin. Mexican Catholicism is very, very brutal and very, very gory. That all affected me."

Quote

"There is a filmmaker in that short. Very often you see shorts that are glossy but have very little to say."

Guillermo Del Toro
Talking about the film that inspired Mama.

Mama, his latest producorial effort, is a spooky tale of two abandoned girls raised by a supernatural nanny. Del Toro came to the story after seeing a three-minute short film by director Andrés Muschietti.

"The short is brilliant," he says. "Atmospheric and creepy. You can see a storytelling will. You can see a voice. There is a filmmaker in that short.

"Very often you see shorts that are glossy but have very little to say. Or they're really intense and interesting but they are badly done. But this short had the perfect balance of form, function and story."

Muschietti is just the latest director to be discovered and mentored by Del Toro, who himself was given a helping hand by people like James Cameron.

"I've been very, very blessed by finding good people who believed in me at the right time. Obviously I try and pay it forward. Right now I'm 48-years-old and have been doing this for 30-something years, 20 directing. I've been able to produce close to 20 movies between Mexico and America and Spain and I would say in 99 per cent of the cases it has been really, really beautiful. A couple of cases it has been hard or the movie has been disappointing but Mama is one of the good ones I am really proud of."

Spears' father arranged split with ex-fiancé?

Britney Spears reportedly had nothing to do with her breakup with ex-fiancé Jason Trawick, as the split was orchestrated by Trawick and Spears' father, Jamie Spears, who still has legal control of her personal life and finances, according to Radar Online.

"It really wasn't Britney's decision to announce the split last week, it was Jamie who made the call," a source says. "Jason wanted out, and in the fragile state that Britney is in, it's not like he could have a rational conversation with her about it, so it was really between him and Jamie. Britney was left out of everything and really didn't even know what was going on."

The biggest surprise, though, is exactly how in the dark Spears apparently is about her personal life.

"Jason and Jamie wanted to make sure that Britney didn't lose it, so they had to water things down for her a bit," the source says. "She still hasn't exactly grasped yet that the relationship is totally over."

5 spots that drive Dominic Monaghan wild

Lost and Lord of the Rings star Dominic Monaghan gets wild this year on OLN's new series Wild Things with Dominic Monaghan, which premieres Monday. Metro picked Monaghan's brain on his favourite escapes.

The rainforests of Ecuador

"Ecuador is a pretty beautiful part of the world, but I quickly get out of any cities, like Quito and make a full-day journey into the jungle, which is a drive to a boat, then a boat to a car, then a car to another boat and then finally ending up at this place called the Tiputini Research Centre, which is one of the places I based myself out of when I was making Wild Things. It's an extremely remote, extremely isolated research centre in the middle of the rainforest. It doesn't even appear on the map. If you want to experience what it's like to be out in the middle of nowhere surrounded by one of the most wild and unforgiving natural environments in the world, that's a pretty good kicking off place."

New Zealand's south islands

"Some of my happiest times travelling around have been exploring the south islands of New Zealand. New Zealand is obviously a very modernized country but the south islands have some pockets that have kept their natural beauty. My favourite way to experience that is to just rent a car and take a ferry from Picton on the southern point of the north island and get dropped off at the northern point of the south island and then just drive down to Queenstown over the coast for maybe three or four days, stopping in different places. It's a wild and blustery kind of place. You can see a lot of the places where we filmed sequences in Lord of the Rings. New Zealand is called the land of the long white cloud. It's just a really beautiful place to go to."

Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam

"I really like Ho Chi Minh City in Vietnam. It's a very, very busy, crazy city with a lot of influences from many parts of the world. The French influence can be felt and Thailand and Cambodia have a bit of an influence here. It's just one of those cities where it gets busier and busier as the night gets on. Once the sun goes down the city really comes to life with a lot of noise and a lot of really interesting food you can buy on the street and friendly people and cool things to check out. There's a lot of people watching, going to squares and seeing some of the craziness."

The islands of Thailand

"Some of the islands up the coast of Thailand are pretty beautiful, like Ko Tao and Ko Samui. I really like going to a place called Krabi. They are pretty experienced with stuff like scuba diving and snorkelling and any kind of water activity you might want to do. There are amazing people in Thailand, really fantastic food, it's a great escape."

Berlin

"I go to Berlin a lot. It's not the most exotic of locations in the world in terms of jungles and crazy animals, but I was born in Berlin. It's a really interesting city, great architecture. It's got nice food. German food is a little heavy, but it's very tasty. They also do a pretty good line in beer."

Jasper heats up for annual winter festival

Jumping January.
Two-week event has mountain town hosting outdoor adventures, contests and a chili cook-off

It's like a big small-town party in the mountains.

Jasper in January is an annual festival scheduled smack-dab in the middle of winter for those brave enough to celebrate the cold instead of running off to the beaches of Mexico.

"We don't all have to hibernate throughout the winter," says Mary Darling, a spokeswoman with Tourism Jasper. "There's still things you can do."

Family fun, evening entertainment and outdoor adventures — many of them free — take place daily over two weeks, bringing the town of 5,000 to nearly double its size.

Picture it: making gooey s'mores over an outdoor fire, strapping on snowshoes surrounded by majestic mountains, throwing snowballs inside a pub while sipping a pint of beer, even sporting a Speedo while leaping into an icy lake.

"It's rejuvenating," says Peter Scott, a local electrician who plans to participate in his fourth Polar Bear Dip this Sunday.

Nestled in the Rocky Mountains, Jasper is about a 3 1/2-hour drive west of Edmonton. To many, it's considered Banff's little sister. But that's not necessarily a bad thing. While Banff is crowded and commercial, Jasper is quiet and laid-back.

History shows Jasper was a place where people lived before it became a travel destination. It was settled as a fur trading post, then designated a national park in 1907.

The addition of hotels, spas and five-star restaurants hasn't dampened its cosy and comfortable feel. And Jasper in January captures that allure, right from ice skating on a frozen pond to noshing on some homemade chili.

In fact, the chili cook-off this Friday night is the only event that has carried on each year since the festival started 24 years ago. Would-be chefs team up and mix pots of chili at the local activity centre, creating more than a dozen flavours that anyone can buy and sample.

Happy Birthday Tube you, London subway

World's oldest metro. While some may rail on London's people mover, the subterranean train has a storied history

Busy, congested, stressful. This is how the world's first subway system was depicted by London newspapers in 1863. It's a situation that would be familiar to nail-biting passengers of the present as the Tube turned 150 years old Wednesday.

"The constant cry, as the trains arrived, of 'no room,' appeared to have a very depressing effect upon those assembled," The Guardian newspaper reported on the public opening of London's Metropolitan Line on Jan. 10, 1863. The first stretch of rail had opened the day before, on Jan. 9.

The line — the first part of what is now an extensive London transport network that has shaped the British capital and its suburbs — ran 120 trains each way during the day, carrying up to 40,000 excited passengers. Extra steam locomotives and cars were called in to handle the crowds.

Architectural historian David Lawrence said the rapid expansion of the subway network — better known in London as the Tube — had a major impact on the city's design. The Tube helped lure people away from the inner city into new areas where new housing was being built near the stations.

The houses were built in a village style mocked by some historians as already dated.

"They were selling an England which had already passed by that time," said Lawrence, a principal lecturer at Kingston University.

In 1919, the Metropolitan company became directly involved in developing what came to be called "Metro-land" on surplus land. One of the company's promotional posters displayed drab rows of inner city terrace houses and urged people to, "Leave this and move to Edgware."

However, they were also selling the dual benefit of a quiet, unpolluted suburban life paired with rapid access to the cultural and economic benefits of the metropolis, Lawrence said. The pioneering Metropolitan Line sparked a new wave of underground development which today has grown into a 402-kilometre system carrying 1.2 billion passenger journeys each year.

Although Londoners love to complain about its sometimes sketchy performance, the Tube and its related rail lines can be a remarkably efficient way to move vast numbers of people in and out of the city, with roughly 3.5 million journeys completed each day.

Taking aim at the Tube

Like many an innovation, the proposal to build a 4.8 kilometre underground rail line from Paddington Station in central London to Farringdon on the edge of the financial district in the east aroused great skepticism and criticism when it was first proposed. The editorial in The Times of London at the time found the concept repulsive: "A subterranean railway under London was awfully suggestive of dank, noisome tunnels buried many fathoms deep beyond the reach of light or life; passages inhabited by rats, soaked with sewer drippings and poisoned by the escape of gas mains," the newspaper declared.

Buttermilk moves from breakfast table to dinner star

Buttermilk-Soaked Pork Cutlet Sandwiches

This recipes serves four. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

We've all had buttermilk pancakes and waffles, but most people don't realize just how versatile an ingredient buttermilk is.

Let's start with buttermilk's signature tang. It's tangy because it's acidic, and acidic ingredients make for great marinades. Give chicken, pork or turkey a buttermilk bath and you'll get especially tender, flavourful meat. Before you add the meat, just whisk in whatever seasonings you want. That's how it's used in these Buttermilk-Soaked Pork Cutlet Sandwiches. And that same tang turns out killer mashed potatoes. Use it in place of regular milk, then mash away.

1. Cut tenderloin crosswise into thin rounds, each about 1/4 inch thick. One at a time, set between sheets of plastic wrap and pound evenly thin using a meat mallet or rolling pin.

2. In bowl, whisk buttermilk, 1 tablespoon red curry paste and salt. Add the pork and ensure it is evenly covered by the liquid. Refrigerate this for at least 1 hour and up to 8 hours.

3. When ready to cook, heat the oven to 400 F. Coat a baking sheet with cooking spray.

4. In a wide, shallow bowl, mix breadcrumbs and pepper. Remove the pork cutlets from the marinade. Dredge each piece through the breadcrumbs, patting them on as needed to coat evenly. Arrange the pork cutlets on the prepared baking sheet.

5. Bake 10 minutes. Meanwhile, in bowl, whisk remaining 1 teaspoon red curry paste, mayo and vinegar. Slather quarter of mix over bottom half of each burger roll. Top with lettuce and tomato, then 1 cutlet. Serve. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

- 1-lb pork tenderloin
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 1 tbsp plus 1 tsp Thai red curry paste, divided
- 1 tsp kosher salt
- 2 cups panko breadcrumbs
- 1/2 tsp ground black pepper
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1/2 tsp cider vinegar
- 4 burger rolls
- Boston or other leafy lettuce
- 1 large tomato, sliced

Student voice

'I'm tired of waiting... I'm ready now'

Beverly King
Graduate
Bachelor of Commerce in Marketing Management
Ryerson University

TalentEgg.ca

I wish I could say I had a school to work transition, but that would be implying I transitioned. I am still in the same part-time retail job I had in school as a way to supplement my student loan. My loan remains in repayment because I don't make enough on a steady basis to make any form of substantial payments.

Although I am working in the industry I hope to have my career in, I have made no progress either within my company or with others.

Every job interview I have been to either for an entry-level position or even an unpaid internship has had the same reply: you don't have enough experience.

I don't know at what point employers decided that experience was needed for free positions or that they were not going to invest in new graduates, but whenever that was they doomed us all to positions where we are overqualified, underpaid and unhappy.

After years of working with a company in my industry of choice, I have watched people from other companies get positions they already have. Companies have adopted a disgusting trend of horizontal employment; they hire people from other companies doing the same job they are looking for to save on training costs.

Frankly I'm tired of being passed over while companies play red rover. I'm not frustrated — I'm furious.

Don't tell me to be patient. I went to school for six years and continue to do so. I'm tired of waiting. I'm ready now.

What I'm doing now

Nothing. Part-time retail. Part-time continuing education classes when I can afford it.

My recommendations for employers, career centres and schools

It takes more than a career board to get your students jobs.

Stop letting companies pretend they are supportive of your students when they only employ the top 2 per cent of classes. If they are not giving your students real opportunities, (and I don't mean pitching tents at career day promoting entry-level retail sales associate positions!), then they shouldn't be allowed to pretend they do anything for your students. And stop pushing the same industries and same jobs for your students. Job opportunities should be as diverse as your program possibilities are!

My advice for students and recent grads

I wish I had advice. I could use some.

Serena Williams rolls ankle, rolls to shutout victory

Serena Williams frightened a few people, including herself.

Day Two at Melbourne Park on Tuesday brought another day of perfect weather, but a few anxious moments for Williams, who fell awkwardly on her right ankle in her 6-0, 6-0 win over No. 110-ranked Edina Gallovits-Hall.

Williams had the ankle heavily taped by trainers and was able to continue and still dominate the Romanian player. Later, she said she hoped to continue playing — she'll have a scheduled day off Wednesday, returning Thursday to play her second-round match — and maintain her quest of winning her third Grand Slam tournament in a row and sixth Australian Open.

NHL. Tanguay confident he'll make successful move to position he hasn't played since his junior days

Quoted

"I think he's a natural. You just get your stick down and try to get open and, more often than not, he'll find you." Lee Stempniak, on Alex Tanguay's position change to centre.

When Alex Tanguay broke into the NHL with the Colorado Avalanche back in 1999, he had two options.

He could switch from his natural centre position and play left-wing on a line with Joe Sakic, or he could watch from the press box.

"I became a left-wing then and I've been that ever since," said Tanguay, who was also behind Peter Forsberg and Stephane Yelle on Colorado's depth chart at centre. "It was fun for me to get to watch some of the best players. I knew I wasn't going to play that position so I made the adjustment."

Bob Hartley, who was Colorado's coach then, recalled that he initially tried Tanguay out at centre during practice.

"But we had so many options with Joe and Forsberg," said Hartley, who was reunited with Tanguay when he signed on to coach the Calgary Flames late last May. "He was a young kid coming in with no NHL experience. To be on Joe's wing was not a bad thing. Better being on the left-wing than eating popcorn upstairs."

Now, 13 seasons later, Hartley made the decision to put Tanguay back at centre for the first three days of Flames training camp.

"It's been a while since I played centre," said Tanguay, who won a Stanley Cup with Hartley in Colorado in 2001. "I used to play it in juniors (with the Halifax Mooseheads of the QMJHL). I know how to play it. It's going to take a little bit of time and I'm going to take as many days as possible to hopefully be ready."

With Calgary's home opener slated for this Sunday against the San Jose Sharks, that doesn't leave much time.

"I'm looking forward to the next few days of practice and hopefully I can improve and get better," Tanguay said.

20K for LBJ: James pushing pace for scoring supremacy

NBA. Miami superstar set to become youngest to reach 20,000, and he could 'have a lot more points by now'

LeBron James was the youngest player in NBA history to win rookie of the year, to record a triple-double, to score 1,000 points, to score 10,000 points, to win MVP honours at an all-star game ...

You get the idea.

His latest youngest-to-do-it milestone could come as early as Wednesday. He needs 18 points to become the 38th NBA player to score 20,000 in his career. If it happens Wednesday when the Miami Heat visit the Golden State Warriors, James will be more than a year younger than anyone else to reach the mark.

"You look at how many players have come through this league, the history of the game," James said. "That 20K mark is very limited. How many guys have done that? It's very, very limited.

"It'll be big-time. I'm not going to shy away from that. I'm not a big stats guy as far as individual, but that'll be pretty cool."

James' teammates say he could have reached 20,000 even faster.

"If LeBron was a different kind of player, he'd have a lot more points by now," Heat guard Dwyane Wade said. "He's so unselfish. We give him the ball enough to score more. He just won't do it. We've had the discussion. We've sat down at dinner and we both said, 'Sometimes, I wish I had it in me.' We talk about it, we joke about it, but when the game comes he's unselfish."

Considering James has scored at least 18 points in 74 of his last 75 games, including playoffs, the milestone would seem likely to be met against the Warriors. It's the next-to-last game of a struggle-filled road swing for the Heat. Miami is 1-3 so far on the trip.

Maybe a little celebrating is exactly what the Heat need right now.

Legendary company

If LeBron James scores the historic 20,000th point on Wednesday, he will have done so at the age of 28 years, 17 days.

- According to STATS LLC, the youngest to date to score 20,000 points was Kobe Bryant, who got there when he was 29 years, 122 days old.
- And only Bryant, Wilt Chamberlain (29 years, 134 days) and Michael Jordan (29 years, 326 days) reached the milestone before turning 30.

Nets grab another win vs. Raptors

Brook Lopez had 22 points and nine rebounds, Joe Johnson and Deron Williams each scored 21 points and the Brooklyn Nets extended their season-high winning streak to seven games with a 113-106 victory over the Toronto Raptors on Tuesday night.

Clippers rise over Rockets in Houston

Jamal Crawford scored a season-high 30 points, including 12 straight to start the fourth quarter, and the Los Angeles Clippers looked just fine without Chris Paul in a 117-109 win over the struggling Houston Rockets on Tuesday night.

The Clippers won their second game in a row despite missing their star point guard, who is day-to-day with a bruised right kneecap. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With Pronger out, Flyers hand 'C' to Giroux

The Philadelphia Flyers have named Claude Giroux the 19th captain in team history.

General manager Paul Holmgren made the announcement Tuesday night.

Giroux takes over for defenceman Chris Pronger, who has not played since Nov. 19, 2011, and still suffers from lingering effects of multiple concussions.

"The pressure I feel most times is pressure I put on myself."

Pittsburgh Penguins captain Sidney Crosby.

Crosby insists the headaches and concussion-like symptoms that plagued him over the last two seasons have vanished. They disappeared over the summer, when Crosby began his annual summer ritual back home in Canada of pushing himself beyond his limits in an effort to regain the form that made him the most dominant player on the planet before a pair of hits to the head in January 2011 seemed to put his career in jeopardy.

NHL draft rankings. Jones leads pack at mid-season

Unlike some previous seasons, there is definitely no clear favourite to go first overall in the 2013 NHL entry draft.

The Central Scouting Bureau released its mid-season rankings on Tuesday, with Portland Winterhawks defenceman Seth Jones taking the nod as the top draft-eligible skater from North America. He was closely followed by Halifax Mooseheads forward Nathan MacKinnon.

Given that both players are standouts at their respective positions, the team holding the No. 1 pick will likely make their selection based on positional need rather than drafting the best available player.

"It was just by a slim margin that Seth is sitting (ahead) in the first ranking right now," Central Scouting director Dan Marr said from Halifax. "But this is a very fluid first overall (position) heading into this year's draft."

Jones, from Arlington, Texas, came up through the U.S. National Team Development Program and has blossomed in the Western Hockey League, leading all rookie WHL blue-liners with 28 points in 33 games.

The son of former NBA player Popeye Jones, the six-foot-three, 208-pounder has eight goals, 20 assists and a plus-29 rating with the Winterhawks. Jones also guided the American team to a gold medal at the recent world junior hockey championship. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Review. Maker fast, fine tuned new model after unjust 2012 criticism

MALCOLM GUNN
Wheelbase Media

Well, there's nothing like a verbal poke in the eye to get your undivided attention.

Not all that long ago, Honda announced the mid-2011 arrival of its 2012-model-year Civic. Fans of the brand seemed pleased, as evidenced by the upwardly pointing sales charts. However, the press and a certain advertising-free consumer magazine gave Honda a rough ride, reporting that the Civic had an uninspired look, average handling and plasticky interior.

Now, most automakers would have simply ignored those comments. Not so, Honda. Whether motivated by its competitive instincts or by a desire to simply do better (or both), it's introducing a heavily revised 2013 Civic sedan well ahead of schedule.

What a difference just a single model year makes.

Structurally, changes have been initiated to improve the Civic's front-end collision protection, especially at each corner. There's high-strength steel in the A-pillars (that flank the windshield) and in the side sills below the doors.

Changes have also been made to the suspension, steering and soundproofing materials to improve ride comfort, reduce cabin noise and create a sportier driving experience.

Honda has addressed concerns regarding the Civic's interior by giving the dashboard a major makeover. There are now fewer visually irritating creases and angles and most plastic surfaces have been covered with richer-looking soft-touch materials.

It could be argued that the newly energized Civic sedan is the car that Honda should have introduced for 2012, but at least the quick response in addressing concerns will impress the legions of Civic supporters and prove the automaker's ability to make rapid change.

The Civic's interior is sleek yet simple.

The interior is appealing and stylish

DRIVE

After a quick check up, you will vote for this Lincoln

Second Gear.
2007-2010
Lincoln MKX

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
Drive@metronews.ca

PHOTO: HANDOUT

The MKX was Lincoln's entry to the luxury crossover segment occupied by such brands as BMW, Infiniti, Lexus and Audi when it hit the market for the 2010 model year.

Like most of its competition, it packed V6 power, available all-wheel drive (AWD), heaps of leather and numerous high-end features like a premium audio system by THX, leather seating, Bluetooth, navigation, an oversized sunroof and plenty more.

Common Issues

Reports of bad rear wheel bearings mean that test-drivers should listen for a fairly loud roaring noise from the rear of the vehicle. If present, be sure to have the repair calculated into your purchase price.

The sensors and computer that control the MKX's transmission may also be an issue — so note any clumsy, hard shifting or slipping as you drive. Transmission problems are likely to be electronic and not mechanical in nature — though shoppers are advised to ensure that this is the case. Shoppers should also check the MKX's underside (or have it checked professionally) for signs of leakage from the transmission, differential or PTU — which splits power up between the axles for the AWD system. Numerous owners have noted issues with these components leaking, which could cause problems. Check Engine or other warning lights can illuminate for numerous reasons—many of which are sensor-related. Be sure to note the presence of any such lights in the instrument cluster.

Engine

All models got a six-speed automatic transmission and 3.5 litre, 265-horsepower engine. Front-wheel drive was standard and automatic AWD was optional.

What owners like

Styling, comfort, power and handling are often highly-rated by MKX owners. The THX stereo system, interior roominess, flexibility and seat comfort are highly rated as well.

What owners dislike

Many MKX owners wish for more steering feel, better fuel economy, and stronger feedback through the brake pedal.

Verdict

The MKX's unique style and sporty performance are likely to be big draws to it as a used vehicle — though a full check-over by a mechanic should be considered mandatory.

When buying your vehicle's rubber, look for the mountain and snowflake logo to ensure it's for winter

drive@metronews.ca

When you're buying tires for winter, you need to look for the mountain and snowflake. This little logo, of a snowflake inside a mountain peak, is molded into tires that meet the standard for winter tread.

However, while the logo indicates winter use, it means the tire meets a minimum standard and is not by itself a measure of the tire's quality. It's based on a tread pattern used as the industry standard. The tire must exceed the standard by 10 per cent to qualify for the logo.

"The testing is very easy, in simple terms, because it's basically straight-line performance," says Dino Tenuta, senior technical services manager for Bridgestone Canada. "It doesn't take cornering into account. The logo was initially intended for consumers to identify a winter tire, but it's so easy to achieve that rating. You need to look beyond the mountain/snowflake, and do research on tire performance."

While many people think that winter tires are simply "snow tires," they're more than that. Rubber gets hard when it's cold. The rubber compound in winter tires is formulated to stay flexible in low temperatures, which improves its grip on dry or icy pavement.

Their tread is more aggressive, which helps them bite into snow, but they're also designed to channel away slush and water. If slush builds up on the tire, it dramatically reduces the tire's grip.

On wet pavement, the tread pushes water away so the rubber makes contact with the asphalt below.

If it doesn't, the tire can "float" on the water above the asphalt, a dangerous situation known as hydroplaning.

All-season tires can be used in winter, although they are a compromise. Their rubber compound is designed to stay supple in colder temperatures and firm in hot weather, but their tread isn't as aggressive as that of a winter tire, since it would be too noisy for summer use.

Some tires are called "all-weather," meaning they are all-season tires that have the mountain/snowflake logo.

These can be used all year in jurisdictions where winter tires are mandatory, such as in Quebec, but they are still not as good for cornering or stopping as a dedicated winter tire.
